Many people do not know which fucoidan product is better

A large amount of fucoidan product information is displayed when you search the Internet

Those who are considering which fucoidan product to use seem to think, "I don't know because there are too many products."

The difference between products is

- Products with high and low content
- Products with high or low fucoidan raw material purity
- Whether the mixing ratio with other ingredients is good or bad
- Whether the taste is easy to drink or difficult to drink
- Whether it contains additives or not

There are various differences like this

Although there are other product differences, it is important to first set a standard for what you place importance on.

Now let's talk about more effective criteria for good results.

Products for better results

Even if you are new to fucoidan, there are easy-to-understand criteria for product selection.

If you want Fucoidan to be more effective, please select based on the following criteria.

"Criteria for product selection" to avoid regret

① Quality

② Amount of fucoidan

③ Reliable

Other than this, there are other useful ingredients, the presence or absence of additives, manufacturing plants, ease of drinking, etc.

Here, I will explain the three important criteria I mentioned earlier.

Fucoidan Product Selection Criteria-Quality

① Quality

<Check it out!>

Whether the quality (raw material purity) of fucoidan contained in the product is clear

There is a difference in quality.

Let's look at the purity to check the quality.

All you need is high purity.

In the case of precious metals and fruit juice drinks, it is generally known that high purity ones are good.

The same is true for Fucoidan.

There are a few things to note.

Suppose you have a product called A and a product called B

If the product of A and the product of B both use mozuku as a raw material,

Do you think they are the same purity?

It may not be the same purity.

This is because the purity varies depending on the method used to extract fucoidan from Mozuku.

This is due to the difference in extraction technology.

Check the purity when choosing a product.

Fucoidan Product Selection Criteria-Amount of Fucoidan

Be careful not to make a quick selection.

Do you think that the products of major manufacturers and the products you see often are good products?

Inquiries from customers,

「"How about the product from that manufacturer, which you often see in TV and other advertisements?"」

You will be asked like this

But if you look closely,

It seems that no specific numerical value about quality such as the amount of ingredients or purity is displayed.

In order to determine if the fucoidan content is high, it is necessary to check numerically.

If you don't do this, you won't get a product that gives you good results.

Fucoidan Product Selection Criteria-Reliable

③ Reliable

<Check it out!>

Is an analysis test conducted by a third-party organization?

Product content and authenticity

However

It is hard for an amateur to understand whether the fucoidan products on the market are good or bad, so it is difficult to choose.

At our company, we try to provide a product guide that allows the contents to be properly viewed so that the person who purchases a fucoidan product for the first time can easily select a product that is satisfying.

You don't have to lie if the product is genuine. Never hide!

We also publish the numerical value of the product analysis test, so that you can drink with peace of mind, firmly support your health, and make something that you can feel!

For your peace of mind, we carry out analysis tests at the Japan Food Analysis Center, a third-party organization.

Do you have solid proof of the numbers in the product you are trying to choose?

Did you understand about the three important criteria when selecting products?

Again, the important criterion is

1. Quality

2. Amount of fucoidan

3. Reliable

Please select Fucoidan products based on these three.
